CLASS OF FEBRUARY, 1925.

On the evening of Lincoln's birthday, February 12th, 1925, graduation exercises were held for the Midyear Seniors in the Observatory Hall of the Capitol Building.

The big room was filled with people save for the first two rows of seats and those assembled there seemed to be in an expectant mood, as though waiting for something to happen. And something did happen. The doors were suddenly thrown open and the graduates marched in, with all the pride and dignity to which they had won a right by their three years of work and study. And the first two rows of seats were not thereafter vacant.

The exercises were opened with a prayer by the Rev. Clyde L. Hay, after which the entire audience arose and sang the "Star-Spangled Banner." The Imperial Quartette next entertained with two or three songs, sung as only the Imperial Quartette can sing.

Dean Burke introduced the speaker of the evening, the Honorable Harry Fisher, Judge of the Circuit Court of Cook County. Judge Fisher spoke of those things which are closest to the hearts of the lawyer and the student as well; of the rights and duties of the lawyer to the court and to his client, his position and responsibilities in the community, his place in political life, his relation to his country, of every side of an attorney's life.

Judge Fisher's words were not only inspiring but exceedingly practical and if followed by his listeners should guide them through the solution of many a problem which will be set before them in the years of practice which the future will bring.

Upon the conclusion of Judge Fisher's address, the Imperial Quartette rendered two more songs and then the dean addressed the class preparatory to the presentation of diplomas.

Finally the moment arrived for which the class had been waiting for for three years, the receiving of the degrees and the diplomas. Mr. Wood called the first name and J. Burton Baggott, Esq., stepped up amid a volley of cheers and received the document which pronounces him an LL. B. The others were given out in order, until each graduate stood with his prize clutched tightly in his hand.

Then the awards of honors were made. To Allen B. Woodard was given the scholarship prize. Leon L. Mazor won the Callaghan prize for having written the best thesis for graduation. Honorable mention for the thesis writing was given to Harry Hoffman.

In conclusion, a verse of "My Country, 'Tis of Thee" was sung, led by the Imperial Quartette and joined in by all the audience, and the ceremony was ended.

The following graduates received their diplomas:

J. Burton Baggott	Leon Louis Mazor
Harold Milo Bass	Earl C. McCarthy
F. Harold Bennett	William H. Reilly
Herman L. Bernstein	Herman P. Scher
John A. Cervenka, Jr.	Harry Hoffman Schlee
Lewis Cohn	Emanuel H. Sherry
James Edward Flanagan	John McCarty Sikes
Harold Stanley Goldsmith	Louis B. Steinberg
Max I. Hirsch	Harry Tobin
Harry Hoffman	Lucy Mae Viner
Edward Thomas Howe	Elbert Addison Wagner, Jr.
Morris I. Kaplan	Allen Byrne Woodard
Ben H. Kessler	Clarence Lincoln Woodworth
Carmine Charles Laurine	Ofsha Zimrring

STUDENTS' BUILDING FUND.

Although it hardly seems possible that a year has elapsed since our building fund campaign was with us, we find from the records that the second installment of the students' building fund campaign pledges is now due.

Students who have not paid their pledges in full are requested to bear in mind the fact that the second installment is due.

Among the recent contributions by alumni and others are those of Donald Campbell, $100; William C. Miller, $50; Edward Marshall, $100; American Law Book Company, $190, and Mrs. Jacob Baur, $100.
